Dear Parents and Carers,

They're back! As we experienced the storms of this week, hopefully your houses will have been a little calmer once school uniforms had been readied, along with the PE kit and other equipment!

This week has shown a phenomenal effort to get well over 1,300 tests done and students back in lessons and learning. This is due to an army of volunteers who have stepped up to help us when we really needed it, as well as our magnificent support staff, including Ian Stowe, Paul Seymour, Amy Warren, Tamsin Corbett and many more. Thank you to all the volunteer staff of "Nightingale Harpenden" (pictured below). We couldn't have done it without you. They remain an important part of our operation as we have just begun the process of testing for the second time. Not only have our volunteers helped to get the students back into school, they have also allowed the teachers to teach and stay on the front line of educating the students. Teachers have done a great job of welcoming the students back into school in a friendly manner which helped greatly after so many months away. The students have been amazing! They showed great maturity during the testing process and resilience in returning to their lessons. I am proud of each and every one of them.

Have a great weekend!
