For Head Girl

My Manifesto to YOU

Gemma Smith, candidate for Head Girl

1. Improving PSICHE lessons

Firstly, with 1 in 4 people in the UK suffering from mental health issues, I believe that the importance of well-being and mental health in everyday life should be highlighted. I aim to do this by expanding this topic to Year 7-11 PSICHE lessons, whilst making them more exciting and interactive. This would involve incorporating more group work, videos and role play.

2. Year 7 & Year 12 buddy groups

Secondly, to connect the student voice, I would involve Year 12 students meeting up with Year 7 students once a week in an afternoon registration in the first half of the autumn term, to help support, guide and nurture new Year 7's into our family-like school community. I believe that this an important introduction scheme for Year 7's as it helps them learn more about life at RPS and it allows Year 12's to gain experience working with other year groups which will be useful in later life.

3. SLG Christmas Ball

Thirdly, to organise a 'Christmas SLG Ball', which unites the SLG; celebrating their success and the festive season over a formal dinner. I would be interested in looking at local venues such as Luton Hoo, to organise a smart dinner involving food, photos and music. I believe this is important to show gratitude to the SLG who work extremely hard whilst studying for their A-Levels by giving them an opportunity to have fun and celebrate.

4. Peer revision sessions

Lastly, to form revision sessions led by sixth form students to help Year 11's on the lead up to their GCSE exams. This would include lunch time and after school revision sessions on all subjects but in particular; English, Math's and Science. Students can share useful revision techniques, revision notes and complete past papers in order to consolidate their learning before exams begin.
